

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for describing problems in a telecommunications network is provided, wherein the alarms for a network service displayed on an operator's console are presented in the order of the path comprising the service and associated with respective network elements, followed by a description of a recommended corrective procedure for the alarms.